Cllr Graham Henson
 Leader of Harrow Council

It is a privilege to turn much of this edition over to the immensely significant centenary of the Armistice that ended the First World War. The war took a terrible toll on Harrow people, 100 years ago – as our monuments and memorials show. It is an honour to remember their bravery and sacrifice and to tell their story.

War never changes, but great change did come from the horrors of the so-called "Great War" – including rights for women and workers, and a move towards a fairer society. While we honour the heroes of wartime, we also pay tribute to this year's Harrow's Heroes – our borough's wonderful volunteers.

Their values are Harrow's values, and the values our forefathers fought and died for. In 1918, it was the community spirit of post-war Britain that carried people through. Continuing that community cohesion is the best way we can honour the sacrifice of the fallen, each and every day.

WHAT'S HAPPENING WITH...?

... BOB CURRIE CLOSE

Harrow's newest road is named after the much-loved Roxbourne councillor and former Mayor, who passed away in February. As you can see, it's almost complete. This new neighbourhood is the latest in our programme to build homes on under-used council land – in this case, replacing old garages with six family-sized houses. Three will be offered to people on the council's waiting list. The others are for shared ownership sale, and will help local families to get on the housing ladder.

... THE BIG GIVE

It's the season of giving, but helping your community isn't just for Christmas. Young Harrow Foundation's Big Give campaign has teamed up with three partners who will match donations to them – meaning your money works all year round to help young people in crisis. Harrow Council, ES Broadcast and The Reed Foundation will each be match-funding every £10 donated on Giving Tuesday, 27 November. Charities have a week from that date to meet to reach their target – or they could miss out on the match funding altogether. Search online for Young Harrow Foundation Big Give to find out more about how your donations can transform lives.

... OUR PARKS

Like you, we are always looking for ways to make the most of Harrow's spectacular open spaces. Which is why we joined up with Our Parks, a new initiative bringing free group exercise classes to the great outdoors, in partnership with local authorities. Newton Park reopened earlier this year after a restoration programme that brought footpaths, bridges and wetlands. Now you'll soon be able to enjoy fun fitness classes with qualified trainers in the improved space. Check out ourparks.org.uk for updates.

... HARROW-ON-THE-HILL STATION

Harrow tube stations are going step-free – with Harrow-on-the-Hill first to benefit, following a campaign from Harrow councillors, Assembly members and community disability groups (inset). Travelling will be a little easier for people in wheelchairs, passengers with prams and buggies, and anyone else struggling to use steps, by spring 2020. Prep is complete and work to install lift towers and bridges will begin in the new year. Sudbury Hill station is next up, with work due to start in 2022.

Our bravest boys

The Victoria Cross is the highest award for gallantry that can be given to British and Commonwealth forces. During the Great War, VCs were awarded to several men with strong links to Harrow.

Chaplain Theodore Bayley Hardy

The Rev Hardy was educated in Hatch End and received the VC while serving as an army chaplain. Despite being injured, he crawled out into the mud of no man's land to rescue wounded comrades under heavy fire. His VC citation reads: "He has by his fearlessness, devotion to men of his battalion, and quiet unobtrusive manner, won the respect and admiration of the whole division."

Captain William Leefe Robinson

Captain Robinson became something of a celebrity when he became the first pilot to shoot down a German airship over Britain. His action was witnessed by thousands of Londoners – reports say that as they saw the zeppelin laden with bombs descend in flames, they cheered and sang the national anthem.

Capt Robinson was born in Karnataka in southern India and after the war came to stay with his sister in Stanmore. While here he fell victim to the Spanish Flu pandemic, which in the immediate post-war period claimed millions of lives globally. He's buried at All Saints Church, Harrow Weald.

Corporal Charles Ernest Garforth

Corporal Garforth, who grew up in St Kilda's Road, was recommended for a VC on three occasions in the space of just two weeks. Each time he showed exceptional bravery under enemy fire and through his actions saved the lives of comrades in peril. He was later taken prisoner, escaped and was recaptured three times before being repatriated in 1918. He died in 1973, aged 81.

Indians in the trenches

India contributed more soldiers to the First World War than any other dominion of the British empire. As many as 1.5 million Indians fought, at a cost of 70,000 lives. 11 Victoria Crosses were awarded to soldiers from the subcontinent.

Some boys as young as 10, who lied about their age, managed to board ships to the Western Front. Many are remembered at the memorial to Indian dead at Neuve Chapelle in northern France by just a single name.

Indian troops had a reputation for fierce and brave fighting, but heavy losses and the horror of the Western front took their toll, as letters home testify. A wounded

Garhwali soldier wrote to his friend in India: "As when the leaves fall off a tree and not a space is left bare on the ground, so the earth is covered with dead men... the whole world is finished."

Roll call

The First World War was also the first propaganda war. One business, based on the Kodak site in Wealdstone, played a huge part in its success.

A mass recruitment campaign began in August 1914 – by mid-

September more than 500,000 men had signed up. Women were encouraged to work for the first time, in farming and industries like munitions.

Posters were the main weapon in this war and many were printed in Wealdstone by David Allen and Sons, which described itself as the 'Largest Billposting Company in the World'.

They printed a version of the famous Lord Kitchener recruitment poster and more – all invoking patriotism and a sense of duty.

Armistice Day

Lest we forget

There are many ways you can mark this year's Armistice Day in Harrow, with the Remembrance Day Parade and Beacon Ceremony the highlights for this 100 year anniversary

REMEMBRANCE PARADE AND WREATH LAYING

Sunday 11 November
10am, St Anns to Civic Centre

■ The 500 strong parade of dignitaries, veterans and forces personnel will be led by the Glen Trew Pipe Band. It will march from St Anns down Station Road to the Civic Centre and Harrow War Memorial, where there will be a wreath-laying ceremony. The two-minutes' silence will be observed from 11am. There will be rolling closures in surrounding roads throughout the morning.

All other veterans and serving forces personnel are welcome to join the parade, wearing their medals, or uniforms.

Children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren of those who served are also invited to march with their family members' medals. In both cases, meet outside St George's shopping centre for 9.15am. If wearing a family member's medals, please wear them on the right.

Everyone marching in the parade will receive a specially commissioned badge, which has been paid for through kind donation by housebuilder and council partner, Barratt London.

Pinner | 10.40am

■ A wreath-laying ceremony will take place at the war memorial on the High Street, which will be closed to traffic all morning. At the same time, West House in Pinner Memorial Park will host a service of contemplation.

BEACON LIGHTING

6.30pm Harrow Arts Centre

■ On the evening of Remembrance Sunday, we will light a beacon to signify the light that came out of the darkness of war. The beacon will be lit at 7.05pm, the same time at which the First World War was officially ended by the signing of the Treaty of Versailles. At the same time, church bells will ring out in Harrow and across the country in celebration. Refreshments will be provided at the Arts Centre. Arrive early to enjoy HAC's Lest We Forget programme.

● Let us know of any Remembrance events you would like us to publicise by emailing communications@harrow.gov.uk

Women's Army Auxiliary Corps in WW1

6 November | 2pm-3pm | Headstone Manor Museum

■ By 1921, approximately 57,000 women had served in the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps (WAAC). This talk follows the women from enrolment to workplaces overseas, through to the Spring Offensive, Armistice and de-mobilisation.

Beyond the trenches: WW1 Remembrance Concert

10 November | 11.30am and 2.30pm | £9 | Bentley Priory Museum

■ A concert by Tonic Choir, featuring First World War period and specially written songs.

A day to remember: Community Takeover Day

11 November | 12pm-4pm |

Harrow Arts Centre

■ A day of remembrance featuring heritage activities, music and dance performances and family workshops.

WW1 centenary exhibition

On now until 18 November | Museum opening times | Heath Robinson Museum

■ First World War illustrations and wartime correspondence.

Stars in our eyes

More than 200 volunteers and members of the community came together at the spectacular awards evening – and each hero had a truly wonderful and inspiring story to tell. Simply put, Harrow wouldn't be such an amazing place without these incredible people who give up their time and go above the call of duty to make a difference to our residents and the community. So this evening was our way of saying thank you to them.

Guests were entertained by West Harrow Choir, host Terry Frisch and Sapnay (see page 17)

Michela Cogan was joint winner in the Extraordinary Achievement category for her work securing the first-ever “DNP” manslaughter conviction. Collecting her award, she said: “Harrow Council has been so courageous in standing beside us, supporting us all the way through this case.”

Harrow Borough Commander Detective Chief Insp Simon Rose, who presented the Clean, Safe and Green Communities award praised Harrow's Heroes, saying: “It's something an awful lot of other boroughs could learn from.”

My Story

Feeding your baby is the most natural thing in the world. Or is it? For many new mums it can seem impossible and terrifying.

That's why Harrow Infant Feeding Support team is there. This year's Harrow's Heroes winners offer advice sessions with peer supporters, so new mums can get help from women who know exactly what they're going through.

Alison Spiro, who set up the first group 10 years ago in South Harrow, says the peer supporters are at the heart of the group's success: "They're not experts, but they listen to the other mums and that's key. Being supported to feed your child brings benefits that last a lifetime."

Specialist Health Visitor Alison expanded the group to other areas to make sure all mums had a group within walking distance and now there is a group somewhere in the borough every week day.

First-time mum Rachita, who visited at the Hillview group with 12-day-old Mia, was getting advice from peer supporter Julie Peris. She said being able to breastfeed was very important to her: "Everyone says breast is best. I'd struggled a little in hospital and I had to use a bottle more, and I just wanted to get back on track. It's been good to get additional advice and they've talked me through different techniques."

Mums know best

SEEDS OF ITALY

"Italy from seed to plate, that's our philosophy." Paolo Arrigo is the driving force behind Seeds of Italy – a truly unique Harrow enterprise. Tucked away on the Phoenix Business Park, his warehouse and shop is a full-on celebration of Italian flavour.

"Everything is regional, authentic, traditional", he explains, "nothing you can buy here is available in any supermarket."

He sells Tuscan honey, Calabrian chillies, Neapolitan pasta, even fresh eggs from Parma, but grow-it-yourself goodness is the core of the business. A vast wall of seed packets dominates the shop – Paolo has 800 varieties. "If you can't eat it, why bother growing it," he says.

When Paolo first imported seeds, he had a small stand in his father's deli. "It was sheer luck I picked Franchi seeds – I just liked the packets. It's the oldest family-run seed company in the world, and I'm now the sole UK distributor."

He's worked for British Airways and the United Nations, but kept coming back to food. "It's central to Italian life.

"All countries have food inspectors, but in Italy we have armed food police. If you're caught selling dodgy Parmesan, you go to jail!"

Paolo's is a diverse business – he hosts cooking demonstrations and film nights (including The Godfather, naturally), and each year Seeds of Italy even creates a garden for the Hampton Court Flower show (inset) this year winning a silver gilt.

● Now you can enjoy Italian home-grown food too. See page 25 for an exclusive offer.

FLY-TIPPERS PAY UP!

In June a filthy criminal was caught in the disgusting act of fly-tipping in Rayners Lane. He was caught on camera brazenly dumping a large pile of carpet offcuts and then leaving the crime scene. Thanks to a local business who contacted us and provided footage, he admitted to the crime and paid his £200 fine!

HOUSE OF HORRORS

Not everyone has their dream home but what officers found at this Edgware property was the stuff of nightmares. Tenants were living alongside rats and cockroaches, with sewage leaking on to the street. There was dumped and overflowing rubbish, a leaking roof and a broken sewage drain. Owners Milegate Ltd defied warnings to clean up so we took them to the cleaners – they've been made to pay £9,000 by the courts.

An inspector calls...

There's no such day as a typical day if you're the Inspector responsible for all the neighbourhoods in Harrow.

Every day brings its own challenges – big and small, serious and quirky – and Inspector Tanya Sprunks is ready to face them all with her team, based in Peterborough Road.

Having joined the police force 30 years ago, aged 19, Inspector Sprunks has seen the force change drastically.

"I'd wanted to be a police officer since I was five years old but I was told I was too short," she jokes. "It's only when I joined and won the Baton of Honour for my work that I felt I was taken more seriously."

"Things have changed a lot since my time, and now people are worried about police resourcing, which means we need to reassure the community."

One day, Inspector Sprunks could be meeting community and Council leaders in Harrow to discuss street drinkers, fly-tipping, CCTV and improving safety in the boroughs' schools and religious places. The next day will be about leading the Police Emergency Response Team – where she is first in line to deal with 999 emergencies.

"I'm positive about change in Harrow – it's where I've lived and worked for more than 7 years. I'm passionate about the diverse community here and my team understand the issues affecting people."

With the new tri-borough merger starting on 12 November with Harrow, Brent and Barnet, things will be busier. Inspector Sprunks keenly points out that periods of change are uneasy, but there will be other officers from Brent and Barnet in Harrow and bases will be covered.

With winter fast approaching and as part of Operation Autumn Nights, Inspector Sprunks says she wants everyone to get involved in making the community a safer place.

Pole position

Jade Spencer Smith is already used to high achievement. Holder of the girls' under-15 indoor pole vaulting record, this season has seen her twice vault a personal best of 3.9 metres, win gold for England

South at the 2018 School Games and get a call up to team GB.

We caught up with the 16-year-old Harrow star as she trained at Brunel University under the supervision of coach, and former British champion, Ellie Spain. "I'm here three days a week", Jade says. "There's also gym sessions, gymnastics and sprint training."

So, why pole-vaulting? Jade started aged just 10. "It was after a sprint session at Harrow Athletics club – I saw the poles lying around and just wanted to give it a go. When you're little, you don't really think about it... now I'm older, I realise it's probably quite dangerous."

Jade was selected to represent her country in Hungary at the European Under-18 Championships in July. "It was fun", she says, "and a great experience". Jade once again hit her personal best, finishing fifth overall.

So, is she dreaming of the Olympic glory one day? "Yes, definitely. Not the next one, but maybe the one after that – Paris 2024." This rising star's one to watch!
